Star Talk

By GEORGE NAPOLITANO

Welcome to another edition of Star Talk. Since our last issue I have traveled literally all around the world. My odyssey took me from New York to Los Angeles, and then on to Tokyo, Japan, to witness the 1997 FMW Yokohama Arena extravaganza. The tour itself was unbelievable, and the co-main events on the Yokohama Arena card were simply Shark Tsuchiya lies on a bed of barbed wire during her brutal match vs Megumi Kudo. Our truly frightening pictorial starts on page 51.

incredible. In one of the featured bouts Terry Funk, the Gladiator and Cactus "Mankind" Jack battled Wing Kanemura, Masato Tanaka and Atsushi Onita in a Texas Tornado match. The bout ended when Kanemura pinned the Gladiator but not before all of the participants were bleeding profusely. Towards the end of the bout Terry Funk attempted a backward moonsault from on top of the ring post on to Onita. However, just as Terry was about to go crashing into Onita, the Japanese star moved and Terry crashed head first into the arena floor instead. When the match finally ended Terry didn't know where he was nor what he was doing in Tokyo! An ambulance was summoned and Terry was rushed to the hospital for observation. A cat scan revealed that Terry had suffered a concussion in the bout. Although the hospital wanted Terry to stay overnight for observation, he refused and signed himself out. This happened on Tuesday, April 29, and four days later, on Saturday, May 2, in Trenton, New Jersey, Terry felt queasy and was still suffering dizzy spells.

In the second main event, the beautiful Megumi Kudo battled Shark Tsuchiya in an exploding barbed wire death match. Both ladies were bleeding profusely from the wounds suffered in their wild brawl. Meanwhile, Kudo suffered third degree burns on her arms and back after being set on fire by Tsuchiya and burned by the exploding barbed wire. Like Terry Funk, Kudo was also taken by ambulance to the hospital and there she spent the night. High-WCW star power will continue when Dennis Rodman will step into the ring and team with Hollywood Hogan. While Greene, Reggie White and Dennis Rodman are certainly not "wrestlers," in the truest sense of the word, they are professional athletes in their prime and they do know how to take care of themselves. With big names like this involved with WCW, it shows that WCW is the place to be for that true star power.

Following the success of ECW's first pay-per-view comes word that their next pay-per-view will be in August at a site still to be determined. Rumors abound that the August pay-per-view will either be in Lowell MA, or Scranton PA.

There is trouble brewing lights of this bout can be found starting on p. 51.

Owen Hart is the new WWF Intercontinental Champion. After all these years Owen finally has captured a singles title in the WWF. The "New" Hart Foundation (Owen Hart, Davey Boy Smith, Bret Hart and Jim Neidhart) are the most despised group in the wrestling world. Between Davey Boy Smith and Owen Hart, the "New" Hart Foundation have the WWF Tag Team Title, the European Championship and the Intercontinental belt. Actually the only title that the New Hart Foundation doesn't own is the WWF Heavyweight crown, and you can be sure that Bret will do everything in his power to win the WWF strap for the fifth time.

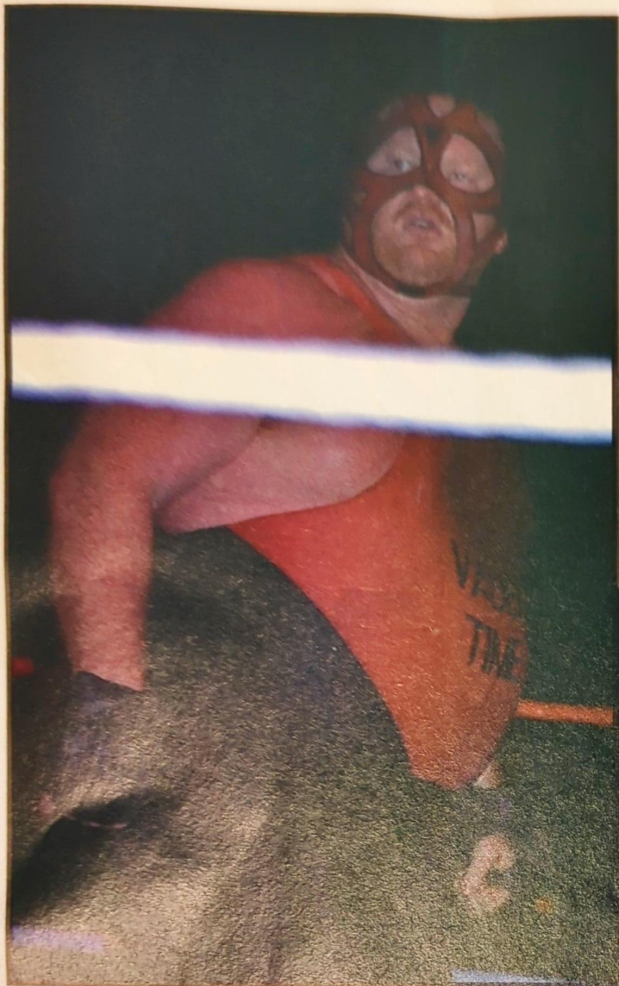

Upcoming cards for the WWF include King Of the Ring which will take place on June 9, in Providence, Rhode Island, and then Summer Slam, on August 3, at the New Jersey Continental Arena (AKA: the Meadowlands).

The next big WCW card will take place on May 18, in Ric Flair's hometown, Charlotte, North Carolina. It will also be the first match that Ric has had in nearly a year. And if this isn't enough to assure a sell-out, in Ric's corner will be Carolina Panther star Kevin Greene. In addition to Greene, the 1997 Super Bowl champion Green Bay Packer star Reggie White will also wrestle. In July, at "Bash At The Beach," rounds on the independent circuit and she certainly looks good.

Miss Patricia has been very busy of late accompanying her man Primo Carnera III throughout New York, New Jersey and Maryland. With a little more seasoning, the huge Carnera could be good.

On June 6, WCW—in conjunction with the Cauliflower Alley Club—will have its second Illio DePaolo Memorial card in Buffalo, New York. Last year's card was a complete sellout and this year's show should be just as good. Some of the legends expected to attend include Lou Thesz, Red Bastien, Dominic DeNucci, Tony Parisi, Sweet Daddy Siki and the Intelligent, Sensational Destroyer. This should be a good one!

between the members of the bWo or Blue World Order. "Hollywood" Nova and "Da Blue Guy" himself, the Blue Meanie, have been arguing with "Big Stevie Cool" Richards. It seems that ever since Richards has been getting more and more main event matches, he's gotten a swelled head.

After spending 11 days under "house arrest" in Kuwait for threatening a news reporter, Vader appears to be even wilder and more vicious than ever before.

Kimona could be joining WCW on a regular basis. It seems that she made quite a favorable impression during her "try-out" at the Philadelphia Core-States Spectrum.

Another lady to watch is Dawn Marie. Dawn has been making the

"STONE COLD" STEVE AUSTIN

By DONNY LAIBLE

Stone Cold" Steve Austin is the meanest, baddest, most feared wrestler ever to lace-up a pair of boots in the World Wrestling Federation.

At least that's what the attitude-equipped Texan wants everyone to believe. Just what motivates this heartless athlete to disrespect all that is around him? The answer may indeed be the weak link that, once addressed, could curtail Austin's wild rampage.

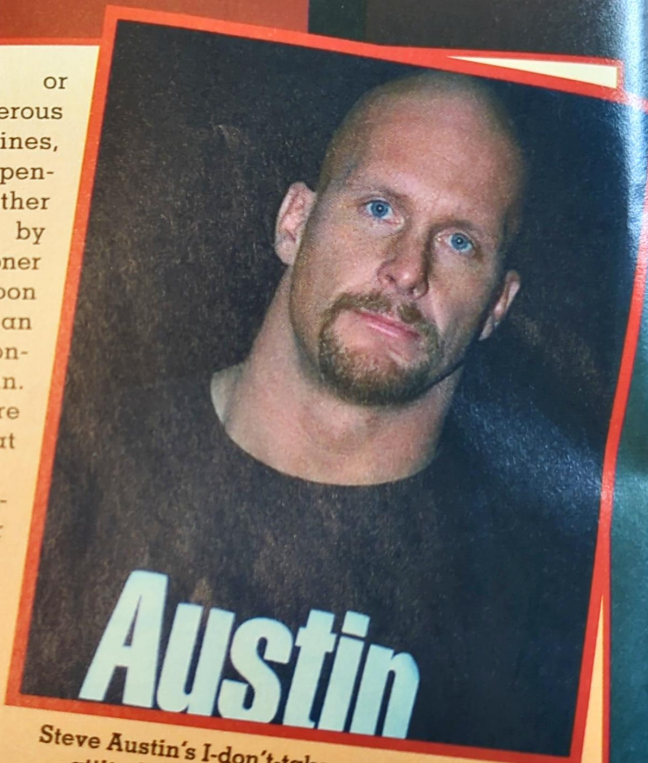

He's abusive, plain and simple. With many questions surrounding "Stone Cold's" behavioral patterns, it's generally accepted that he enjoys abusing those in his company, be it verbally or physically. His sadistic antics have led most within the Federation to stop caring about him and they are no longer helping him to turn his life and career in a more positive direction. In reviewing the so-called "bad boys" of the promotion—during the last 20 years—all pale in comparison to the lunacy that Austin has inflicted upon the WWF.

King Curtis, Stan Stasiak, Pampero Firpo and Stan Hansen were all considered untamable by wrestling's loose standards decades ago. In retrospect, they weren't half as unpredictable or nearly as dangerous as Austin. Fines, threats of suspension and other actions taken by WWF Commissioner Gorilla Monsoon haven't raised an eyebrow of concern from Austin. He couldn't care less about what Monsoon says.

Be it paranoia, distrust or schizophrenia, since day one of his tenure in the WWF absolutely no one has been allowed to get up close and personal with Austin. The bald Texan displays as much personal pleasure interfering in Bret Hart's matches as he does participating in his own scheduled contests.

Re is one deranged man who desperately needs medical attention. He's been blessed with God-given talents and it's all being wasted," Ahmed Johnson explains. "As for his dealings with Bret Hart, brother, I really feel he is so obsessed, so jealous of the "Hitman", he won't be satisfied with a win or two over him. Austin in his own mind wants to be Bret."

Steve Austin's I-don't-take-crap-from-anybody attitude has made him a crowd favorite.

The warped path that Austin is following has superstars looking behind them. Hitting hard from all angles, locker rooms to bath rooms, Austin's dangerous antics have no boundaries. After quenching his wrestling appetite with the "Hitman", there is no way of knowing who will be his next victim.

Rocky Maivia, Shawn Michaels, Vader or any number of others could be prime stalking candidates. Some are already worried. "I'm all for a year's suspension. And if Austin should even show-up in an arena, whether or not he purchased a ticket, add another year onto his sentence," said Hillbilly Jim. Adding, "The man needs to be taught that he is not above the WWF and what it stands for."

How does even the most schooled wrestler successfully defend himself against "Stone Cold"? "For five months, back in '93, Steve and I, as the Hollywood Blondes were World Tag Team Champions," recalled Brian Pillman. "And in all the time we defended the belts, everything, ultimately had to be his way. Changing holds, tinkering with our tagging habits, nothing was ever good enough for him, unless Steve made the move."

Austin has never been shy about saying what he thinks—as Vince McMahon is finding out here.

"STONE COLD" STEVE AUSTIN

In documenting a case against Austin we must not forget about the night he "flipped his lid" on live television and broke into Brian Pillman's Kentucky home. He came very close to physically assaulting not only a pistol toting Pillman, but Brian's wife as well.

What other evidence does Monsoon need to rule in favor of cancelling Austin's bookings indefinitely? There are those who believe that "Stone Cold" is a product of his environment. Combining his own skills along with the skills he extracts from his opponents is what makes his actions and refuses to speak about him. Paul E. Dangerously, who welcomed Austin into his Dangerous Alliance while with World Championship Wrestling—now promoter of Extreme Championship Wrestling—gave him an opportunity in late 1995 to compete in ECW. Austin was even too wild for ECW, and that's saying something!

WWF Hall of Famer "Killer" Kowalski believes the totally consumed Texan needs to have the law layed down upon him and he says he knows someone who can get the job done. "The Undertaker, he's the clear cut answer," said Kowalski. "Make it a casket match, the Undertaker's specialty. Who else is oblivious to pain and can't be intimidated at the level of the Undertaker? Austin would get squashed like a bug! Someone tell Monsoon to sign the match."

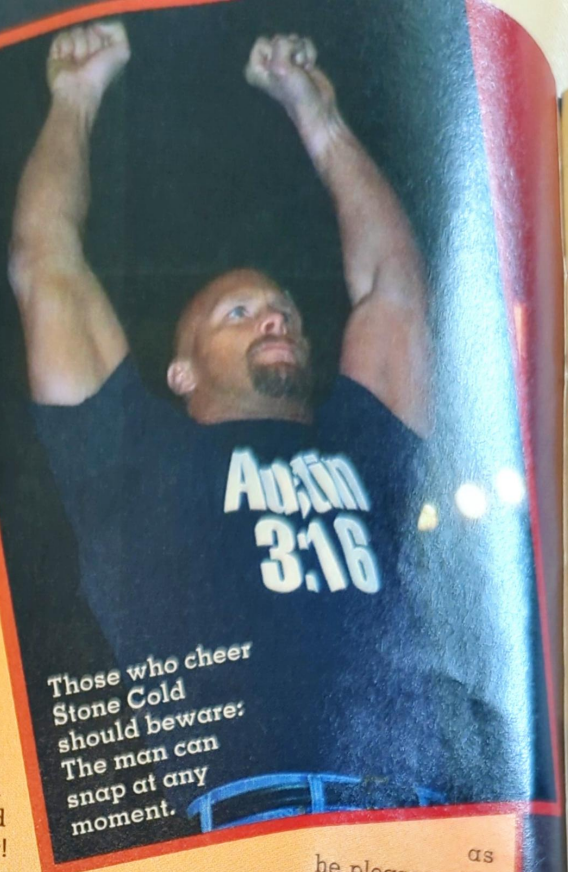

The integrity of the WWF and wrestling in general is at stake. The longer "Stone Cold" Steve Austin is permitted to roam the sport him virtually uncontrollable.

Austin has been labled many things, but ignorant isn't one of them. In searching for answers as to what Austin was like before making his pro wrestling debut with the United States Wrestling Association in Dallas in 1991, his trainer, "Gentlemen" Chris Adams refuses to cooperate. "I threw my hands up in disgust months ago," Adams said. "I don't want anything to do with him. Steve won't listen to anybody about anything having to do with himself, so let him learn the hard way."

Lady Blossom, "Stone Cold's" first manager, like Adams, expresses disappointment in as he pleases without responsibility, the more he affects the entire sport. He's had enough second and third chances to make his mistakes good. It's time to pay for his crimes. Banishment from the WWF. It's the only answer.

Not all fans love Steve—and Steve doesn't love all fans.

THE "NEW" HART FOUNDATION

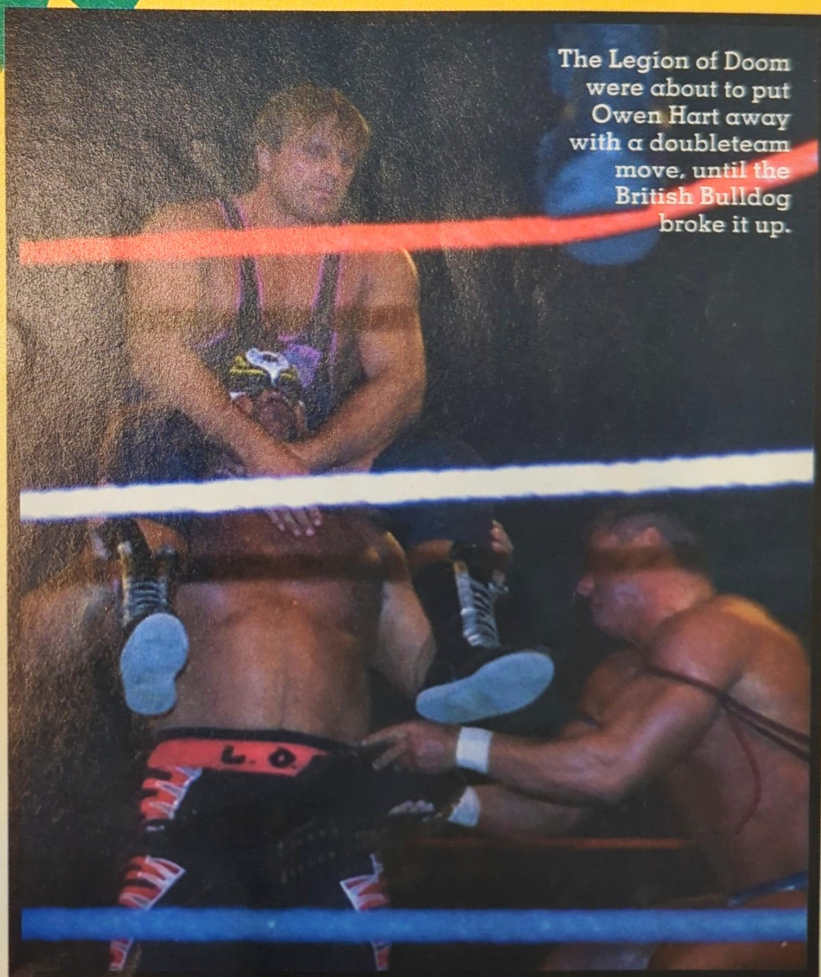

It's a Family Affair

By George Napolitano

Now that Bret Hart has angered his American fans and made amends with his brother Owen and brother-in-law Davey Boy Smith, the Canadians have reformed the Hart Foundation.

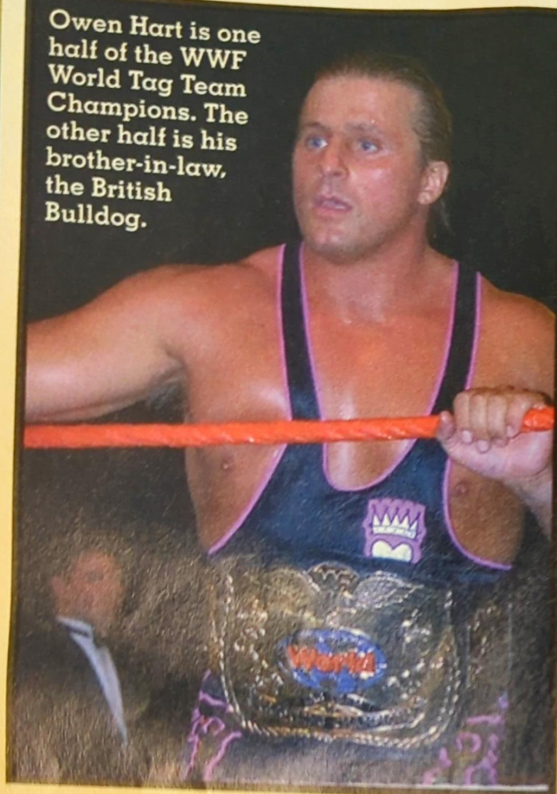

Anyone who has been following the sport for any length of time knows all about the history of the Hart Foundation, but for those novices a little background information is in order.

The original Hart Foundation was formed in 1986 and it consisted of Bret Hart and his brother-in-law, Jim "The Anvil" Neidhart. Their manager at the time was also a Hart, Jimmy Hart to be exact, but despite having the same last name, Jimmy wasn't related to Bret or Jim. During their heyday, the Hart Foundation captured the WWF Tag Team title twice. They were still riding high when Bret decided to forgo the team in favor of individual glory. A couple of years after the Hart Foundation disbanded Owen Hart and Jim Neidhart reformed the Hart Foundation, but they never achieved the same level of

The Legion of Doom were about to put Owen Hart away with a doubleteam move, until the British Bulldog broke it up.

Owen Hart is one half of the WWF World Tag Team Champions. The other half is his brother-in-law, the British Bulldog.

success as the original Hart Foundation. Meanwhile, Bret went on to individual fame winning the Intercontinental title on August 26, 1991 when he defeated Mr. Perfect, and then again on April 5, 1992 when he defeated Roddy Piper. On October 12, 1992, Bret reached the pinnacle of his career when he defeated Ric Flair to capture the WWF title. Bret would then go on to win the WWF title three more times in subsequent years.

In 1993, Bret and his brother Owen had their celebrated falling out, and on March 20, 1994 at Wrestlemania X in Madison Square Garden, Owen finally pinned Bret in a match. And, Owen lived off of that victory for the next four years! Incidentally, the day that Owen finally defeated Bret also happened to be the same day that Bret defeated Yokozuna to capture the WWF heavyweight title for the second time.

In 1996, Owen teamed up with another brother-in-law, Davey Boy Smith, and on September 22, 1996, in Philadelphia, they defeated the Smoking Gunns to win the WWF Tag Team title.

While Owen and Davey Boy continued their mastery in the tag team division, Bret was having his problems with Shawn Michaels, Sycho Sid and Steve Austin. On February 17, 1997, in Nashville, Tennessee, Bret captured the WWF

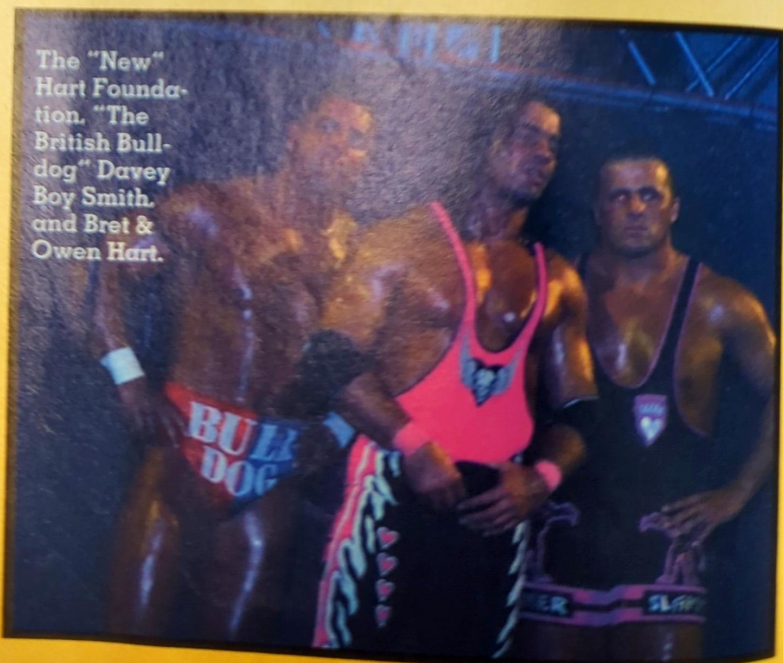

Heavyweight title for the fourth time when he was the victor in a four-way match with Vader, the Undertaker and Steve Austin.

This victory however, changed Bret immensely. Following this win, Bret was a completely different person. No longer was he the happy-go-lucky wrestler that the fans had grown to love. He was mean, nasty, sullen and he complained about everything. His started to irk quite a few of his long-time fans. Finally, in March 1997, Bret snapped. Probably the threat of Steve Austin trailing his every move was just too much for Bret to handle. He went completely berserk. The turning point came when Bret told his American fans to "go to Hell!" Bret Hart had become public enemy number one.

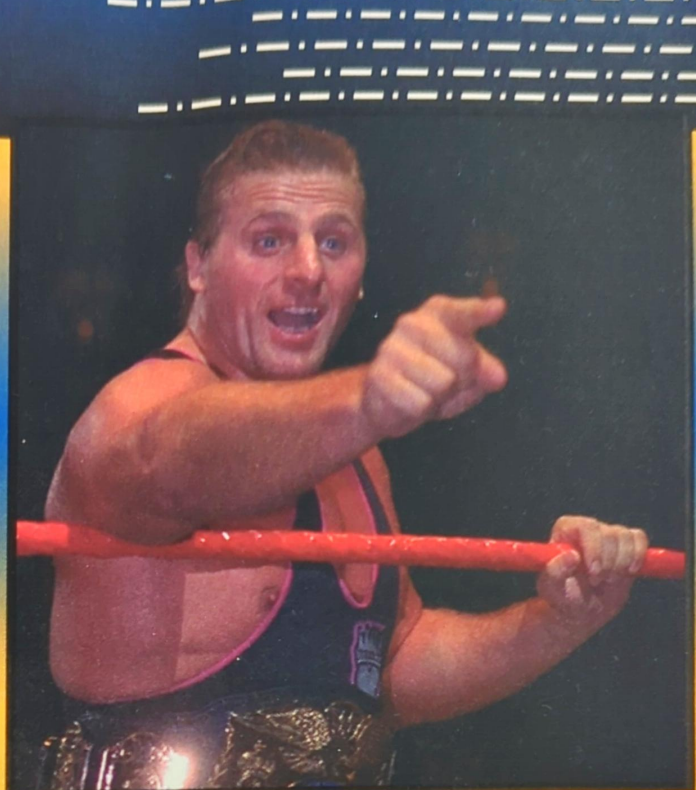

After changing his ways and outlook on life, Bret became a loner. No longer would any of his old buddies associate with him, and none of the wrestlers with whom he'd fought for so long would bother with him either. Having no one else to turn to, Bret remembered

The "New" Hart Foundation. "The British Bulldog" Davey Boy Smith, and Bret & Owen Hart.

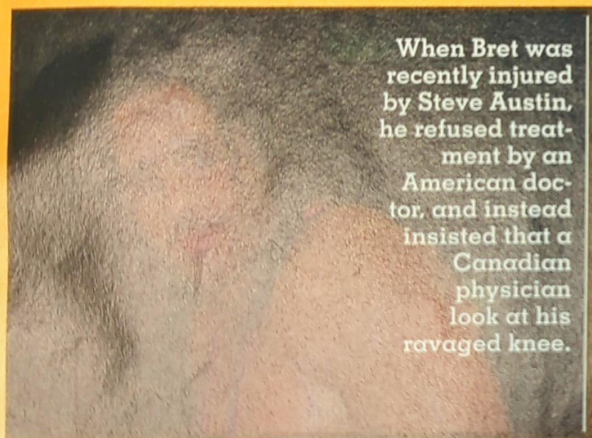

Bret Hart claims he woke up one morning and saw the truth: America stinks.

Owen Hart is anticipating a lot of trouble from the new alliance of "Stone Cold" Steve Austin and "The Heartbreak Kid" Shawn Michaels.

When Bret was recently injured by Steve Austin, he refused treatment by an American doctor, and instead insisted that a Canadian physician look at his ravaged knee.

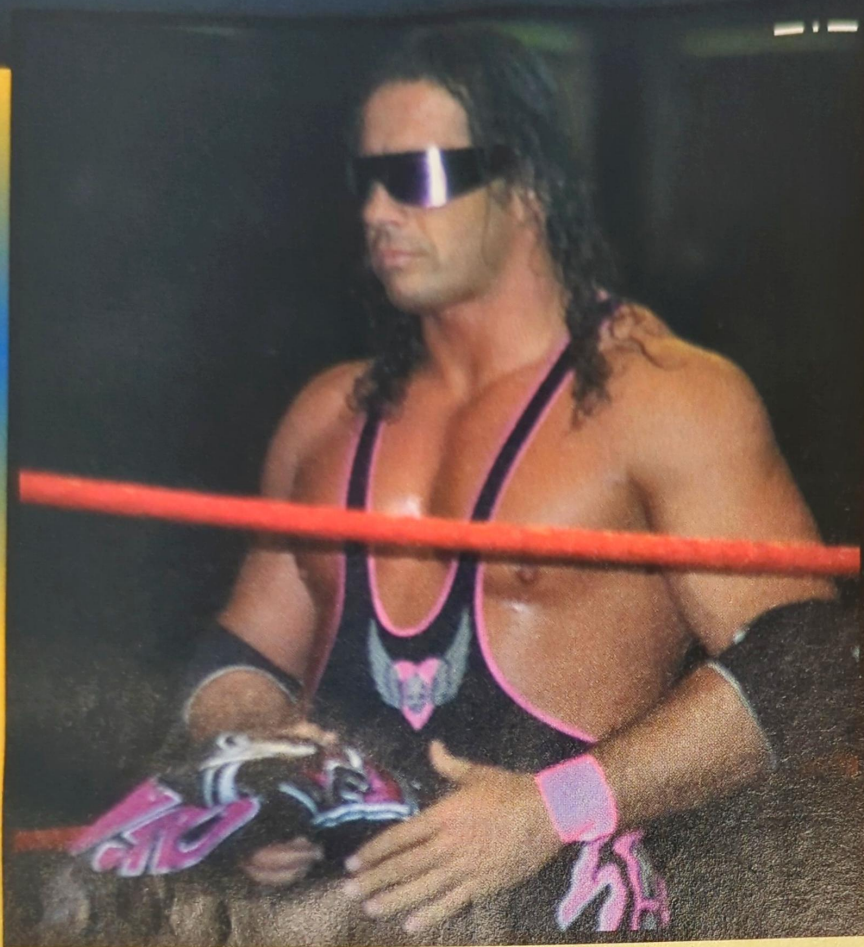

Owen didn't always get along with the British Bulldog until his brother Bret brought the two together beneath his wing.

During a match between Davey Boy Smith and Owen Hart, with Davey Boy's European Heavyweight title on the line, Bret ran to ringside and deplored the brother-in-laws to stop their bickering. Seeing Bret standing in the ring, both Davey Boy and Owen's first instinct was to jump him, but after listening to Bret's spiel about family unity, Owen and Davey Boy looked at each other bewildered. Finally, Bret stuck his hand out to Owen, and after a tense couple of seconds, the brothers embraced. Then Davey Boy joined in and with this the "New" Hart Foundation was now a reality.

On April 28, during a Monday Night Raw tele-

cast, the Hart Foundation was in full force when Owen took on Rocky Maivia for the WWF Intercontinental title. Despite the presence of Davey Boy and Bret (who was watching the proceedings while seated in a wheelchair due to an injury sustained at the hands of "Stone Cold" Steve Austin), Owen Hart defeated Maivia fair and square to capture the Intercontinental crown. After the victory Owen placed the newly won belt in Bret's lap and said that his victory, was for the Hart Foundation. As Bret was being wheeled back to the safety of his dressing room, original Hart Foundation member Jim Neidhart also appeared on the scene to lend his support.

With Owen's victory, the Hart Foundation owns the WWF Tag Team Title, the Intercontinental title, as well as the European championship. Actually the only title that doesn't belong to the Hart Foundation is the WWF Heavyweight title, and you can bet your last dollar that four-time WWF Champion Bret Hart will do everything in his power to win this title the moment that he is able to get out of his wheelchair and walk on his own two feet.

Keep your eyes on the "New" Hart Foundation: Owen Hart, Davey Boy Smith, Bret Hart and Jim Neidhart. This fearless foursome is well on its way to becoming the most successful group in the entire sport.

As one sign-maker put it: "THE BRITISH BULLDOG BITES!"

BIG TIME WRESTLING

Returns to Northern California

By LARRY BARNHIZER

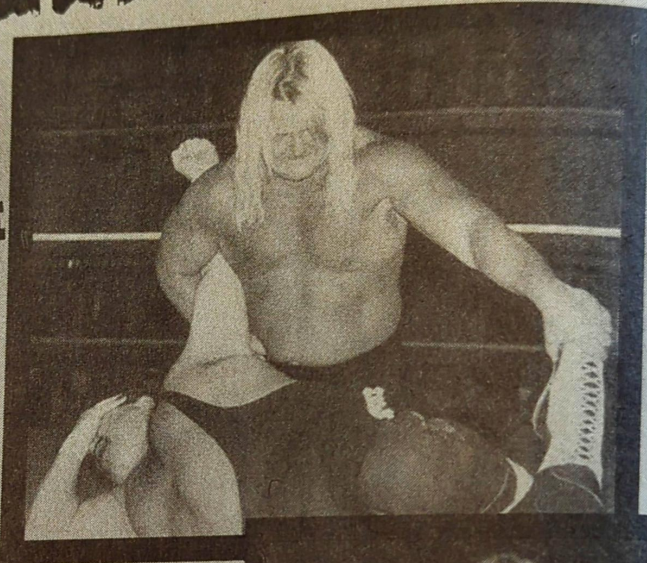

At one time, Northern California was a hot bed of wrestling activity. Weekly cards were the rule in many cities both big and small. There were regular cards in San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton, Modesto, Fremont and many other cities throughout the area. Except for the sporadic card at which all of the regulars would convene and talk about the "good old days," the sport just seemed to die in Northern California.

Lately, however, "Big Time Professional Wrestling" has returned to Northern California thanks to former wrestler Alexis Smernoff. Smernoff has been bringing many of the top stars to Stockton and Fremont to compete and the fans are starting to return in droves to see the stars in action.

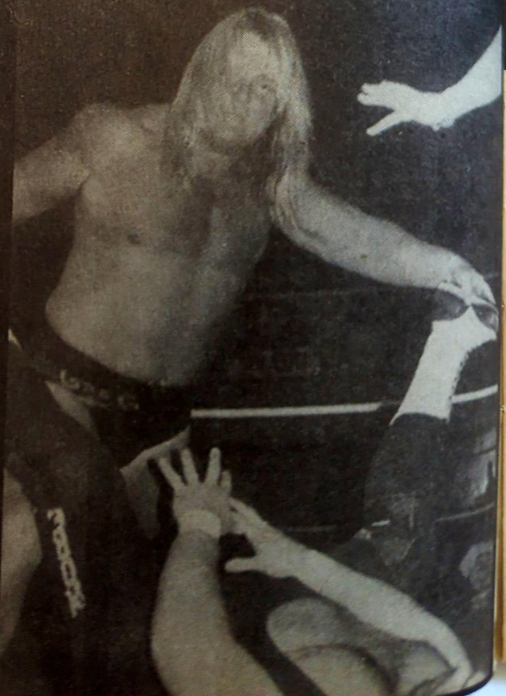

Not too long ago, Tito Santana flew west to face long-time California favorite "Playboy" Buddy Rose. The battle between Santana and Rose was as exciting as their wars back East nearly two decades ago. Rose, by the way, still insisted that he was a svelte, slim 217 pounds, but looking at him it was plain to see that he hasn't been that weight since he was a baby. In the match, Santana defeated the Playboy. After his loss, Rose went ballistic.

In the co-main event, Greg Valentine

BIG TIME WRESTLING

took on another California favorite, "Moondog" Moretti. For years the Moondog was despised in Northern California and the fans' opinion of him didn't change in the least. The battle between the two was a slugfest—but, in the end, Greg Valentine prevailed over the Moondog.

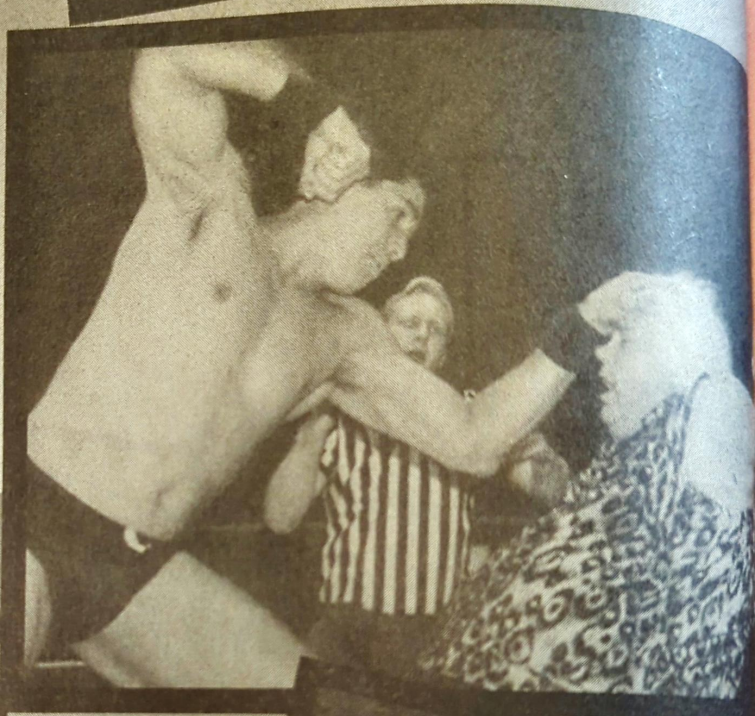

Due to the success of this card, Promoter Alexis Smernoff has promised to bring "Big Time Wrestling" back to Northern California in the very near future.

I like the colorful pictures that you show in your magazine. I noticed that you've given many WCW wrestlers' addresses, how about the WWF? Can you please print Bret Hart's? I am his biggest fan.

Shawn's not leaving WWF

Dear All Stars,

I was intrigued to read in your June issue that my idol, Shawn Michaels, may be nWo bound. Shawn is under contract with WWF for three more years. Yes, he wears an "Outsiders" shirt but that's only to support his pals. Don't be surprised if you catch Hall and Nash in a Shawn Michaels shirt.

Hall, Nash and Syxx left because their contracts expired. Heartbreak Kid has a lot of unfinished business with the WWF. Just because he wears a shirt doesn't mean he's going anywhere.

Cousin Luke And Butch

THE BUSHWHACKERS

Still crazy after all these years

By GEORGE NAPOLITANO

Although the Bushwhackers (Luke and Butch) have not wrestled in the WWF for the past year, don't think for a second that you have seen the last of Cousin Luke and Cousin Butch. The Boys From Down Under have been keeping themselves very busy wrestling for the various independent promoters in New York, New Jersey, Maine and Massachusetts. These promoters know that with Luke and Butch on the card they are assured of a huge turn out. In addition to their Northeast appearances, Luke and Butch have also recently wrestled in Puerto Rico and India, and they have been contacted by WCW about wrestling for them. In between their wrestling commitments, they have been keeping themselves very busy appearing at numerous card shows and memorabilia events, and, needless to say, the Bushwhackers are always crowd favorites.

While everyone knows of the Bushwhackers accomplishments in the WWF, many fans new to the sport may not realize that, at one time, they were one of the wildest tag teams around. At that time, they were known as the Sheepherders, and they fought in numerous chain matches and barbed wire brawls. If you were to check the record book, you would see that Luke and Butch have captured numerous tag team titles all over the globe. This was, however, before they discovered how to do it the WWF way. While they loved their WWF stint, after nearly eight years in the Federation, they felt that it was time to move on.

"If the Dudleys or the Eliminators think they are so tough, let them challenge us."

Butch & Luke: You haven't seen the last of the Boys From Down Under.

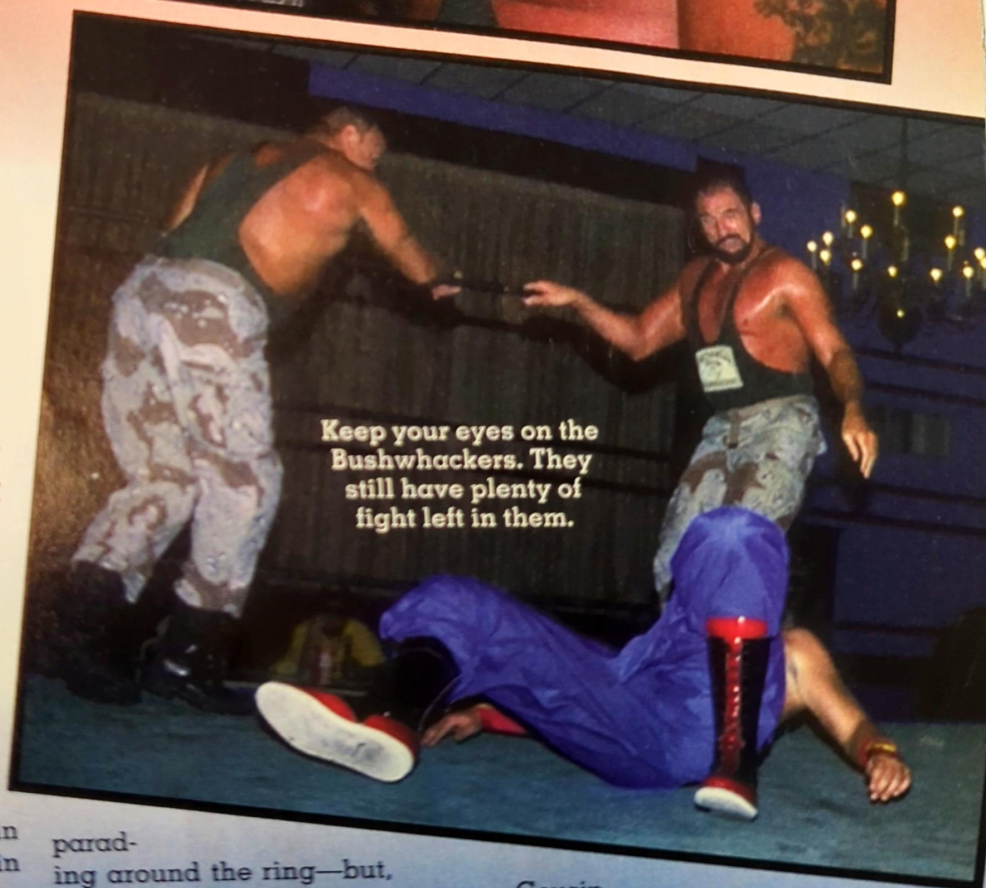

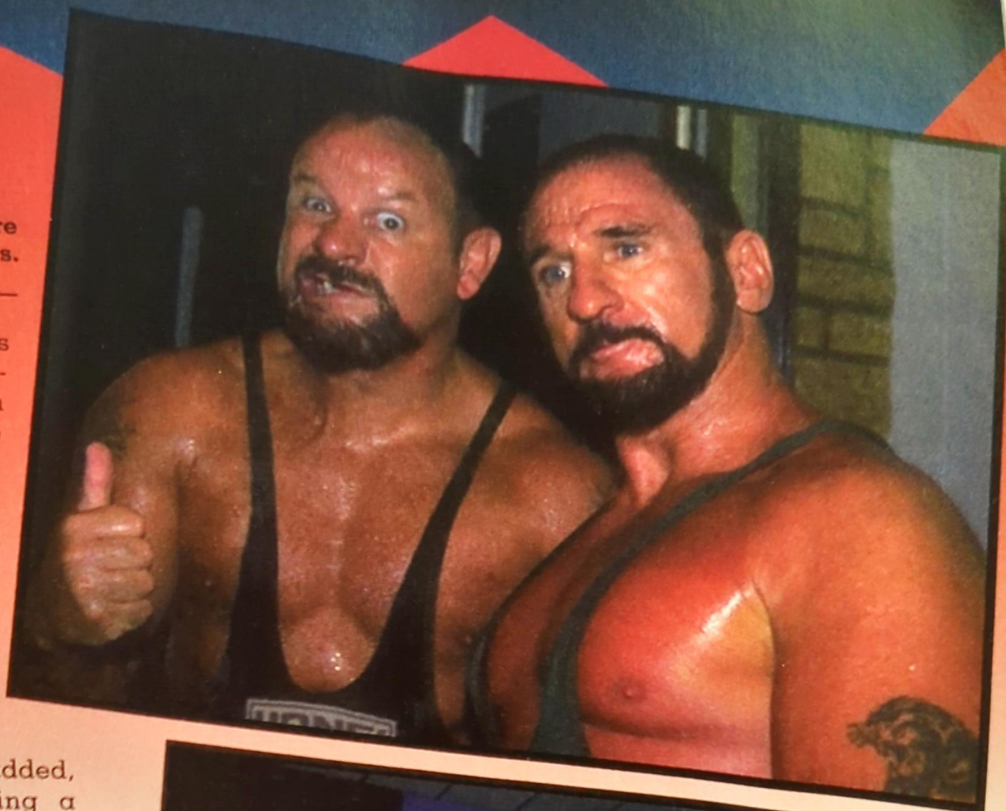

The Bushwhackers are always crowd favorites.

"During our last few years in the WWF, we rarely wrestled at all," admitted Cousin Luke. "We became the ambassadors for the WWF, and they sent us all over the world to meet and greet the fans. Cousin Butch and I liked meeting everyone, but still we wanted to wrestle. The WWF, however, didn't want us to, and eventually we realized that it was time to move on."

Cousin Butch then added, "Right now we are having a bloody good time again. We are doing our own thing and we love it. We make our own bookings; we go where we want to, do what we want to and it's been great! Right now we have a chance to go to WCW and, before the year is out, you just may see us there with all our old friends."

Based on their WWF tenure, it doesn't seem possible that Cousin Luke and Butch could ever wrestle "ECW style," but they originated that style long before Paul E. Dangerously was even a twinkle in anyone's eye.

"Cousin Butch and I have watched ECW and what they do is the same exact thing that we used to do in San Antonio, Texas, in the eighties," said Cousin Luke. "We used to be in barbed wire matches, chain matches, cage matches, matches where a loaded glove was hanging on top of a pole and so many different kinds of matches all the time. Look at my head! How do you think these scars got there? Not by parading around the ring—but, in the WWF, that's what the fans wanted to see."

Keep your eyes on the Bushwhackers. They still have plenty of fight left in them.

Cousin Luke then added, "Hey, if the Dudleys or the Eliminators think that they are so tough then let them challenge us. I know that Cousin Butch and I could get back into it in a second. We saw what our old friend Terry Funk did and matey we still got plenty of fight left in us, too!"

After eight years in the WWF, the lads thought it was time to move on.

Can you envision Cousin Luke and Butch competing in ECW? It may seem preposterous, but the Boys From Down Under haven't forgotten how to fight. They were born fighters on the seacoast off New Zealand, and if Terry Funk can still do it at his age, you can bet that Cousin Luke and Butch can, too.

Keep your eyes on the Bushwhackers. They still have plenty of fight left in them and they will undoubtedly make a big splash before the year draws to a close.

Everybody loves the Bushwhacker walk!

"We are havin' a bloody good time again!"

INTERVIEW WITH THE VACHON BROTHERS: BUTCHER AND MAD DOG

By DONNY LIABLE

There's no doubt that the Vachon brothers, Butcher and Mad Dog are bonifide wrestling legends. Whether together as a tag team or solo, around the globe, the brothers from Quebec were cheered, despised or completely frustrating to their audiences. To opponents, they represented the ultimate challenge in battling for survival.

For more than 40 years the Vachons have influenced those who followed. Recently, Maurice (Mad Dog) and Paul (the Butcher) spoke about their experiences and contributions to their lives work, professional wrestling, without any limitations placed upon them.

WAS: Before getting into what the two of you have accomplished in the past, let's talk about the present. What are the Vachon Brothers doing today?

Butcher: Well, right now I'm building a house—believe it or not. I'm retired of course and putting the finishing touches on my log-end house is keeping me busy. I'm building it in the Appalachian mountains on the Canadian side of the Vermont border. It's on the land where I was brought up. Mad Dog is helping out too, chopping wood.

Mad Dog: I'm living in Nebraska, traveling a great deal. I have a lot of time on my hands these days. Recently I was in Detroit, Michigan visiting my daughter and grandchildren.

WAS: You two come from a large family, do you get to see much of your brothers and sisters?

Butcher: Let me put it to you this way, Mad Dog and I would like to get together with all of them more often than we do now. The Vachon family is spread out across North America. There was 13 of us. My sister Viva Vachon was the baby. She was killed in a car wreck a few years back.

WAS: When the Vachon family gets together is wrestling the topic of conversation?

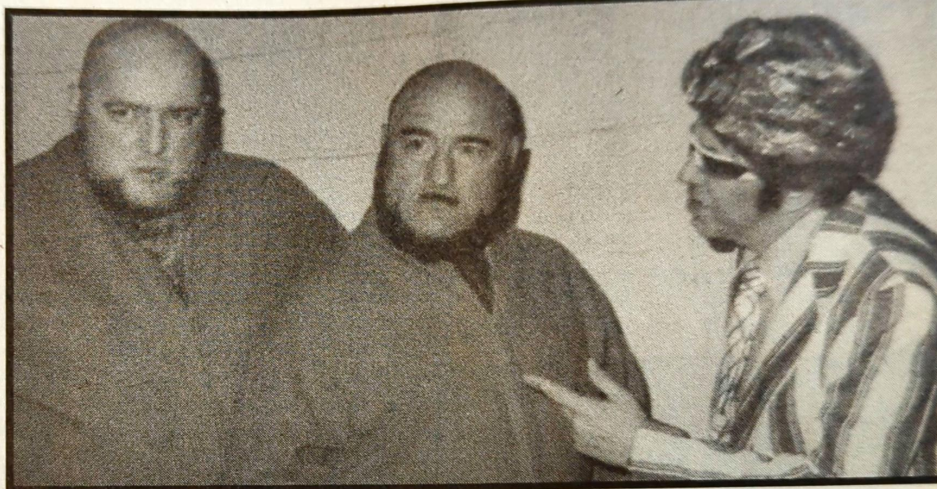

Mad Dog: Most of the time it is. It's very hard to escape from fame. Our family members were our biggest supporters when we wrestled. They remember our matches better than Butcher and me.

WAS: Tell us something about your participation in the 1948 Olympic Games as a member of the Canadian wrestling team.

Mad Dog and Butcher Vachon: as feared as any brother combo in wrestling history.

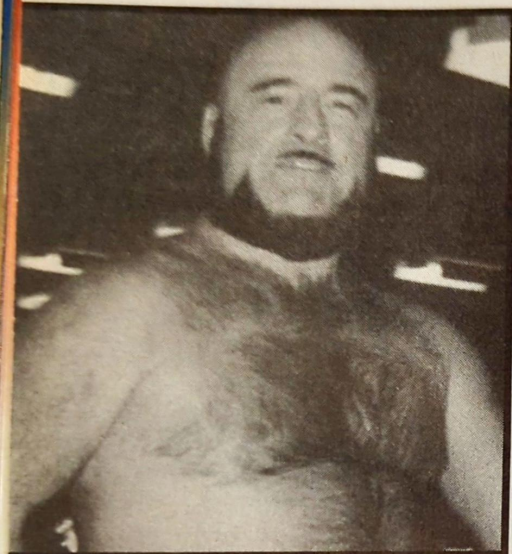

The Vachon Brothers are joined by their long-time manager, the late, great Grand Wizard.

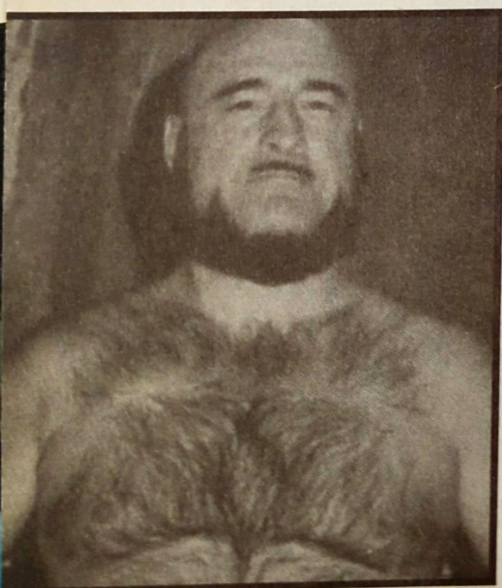

Mad Dog: I wrestled in the 1948 Games in London, England. We marched in the opening ceremonies parade in Wembley Stadium in front of George VI, the King of England and the Queen, Elizabeth. If I remember correctly, there were 75,000 people watching the 5,000 athletes enter the stadium. The Parade of Nations was a wonderful, unforgettable experience.

WAS: How long after the Olympics did you turn pro?

Mad Dog: From the Olympics I went to the British Empire Games (renamed the Commonwealth Games) in 1950 in Auckland, New Zealand. I won a gold medal there. After that, I turned pro.

Mad Dog Vachon wrestled in the 1948 Olympics before turning pro.

WAS: And what were you doing at that time, Butcher?

Butcher: Oh, I was just a little shaver then (chuckling). Actually, there's an eight-year difference between "Mad Dog" and myself. In those days we only had a battery powered radio on the farm (1948). When Mad Dog was wrestling in the Olympics, the battery died. We had to walk to town—to the general store—and listen to their radio for his match results.

Like my brother, I too wrestled amateur. I won a silver medal in the Canadian championships in 1955. Shortly after, at 17 years old, I turned pro. I went from 190 lbs. to 240 lbs. in about six months, and I've never been below that since.

Mad Dog: Let me interrupt for one moment if I may. In 1961, I was wrestling in Hawaii for eight months. One of my daughters, Cheryl, was born there. I received a telephone call from promoter Dick Raines. He was running matches in Australia and asked me if I wanted to go there. Sure I said. But at the last minute I changed my mind, so I called Butcher, who at the time was wrestling in Calgary, Alberta, Canada. He took my place on the tour. We didn't see each other for seven years!

Butcher: Now my daughter Luna, who is with the WWF as a wrestler and manager is doing her share of globe-trotting. Recently she showed me her schedule, she's appearing in ten different countries in as many days. But they (today's wrestlers) do not have time to enjoy their stops. When I was in India, I was there for more than one year. One of my sons was born in Bombay. You really learned how the people lived, what the people had to offer.

WAS: Wrestling has changed dramatically since the two of you entered it. Any opinions?

Butcher: The biggest change I have noticed—you see very few holds demonstrated in the matches. Of course, we made our faces, jumped up and down, but we did incorporate wrestling to make it a contest.

WAS: When you went to the American Wrestling Association in the 1960s, was that the first time you teamed together?

Butcher: No, we teamed on and off earlier but our goals were somewhat different. Mad Dog wanted to stick around in one spot as long as he could get a shot at the singles championship. Me, my priority was to travel. We did team up in Montreal and Texas.

WAS: Does it bother either of you that Canada doesn't have a major wrestling promotion of its own any more?

Butcher: After a while, the promoters of Grand Prix ran a minimum of 200 cards a year in our territory—that was just in Quebec. Now there are five cards a year. My brother (Mad Dog) and I talk about it sometimes, we have hopes of wrestling coming back to a territorial structure once again.

WAS: When you two were involved with Grand Prix Wrestling, based in Montreal, after a couple of years you became promoters. Was that your first taste of the administrative side of the sport?

Butcher: Well, sort of. We were involved in another promotion years earlier, but not with local Montreal promoter, Eddie Quinn. We moved out of town, into the northern end of Quebec and promoted in our own towns when we weren't wrestling.

Mad Dog: We surprised ourselves in those days, drawing 5,000 people to many of our arenas, that was capacity. We had a lot of success.

WAS: Thinking back 20 years, you had one heck of a crew with Grand Prix.

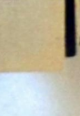

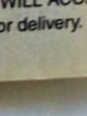

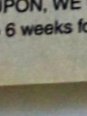

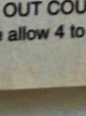

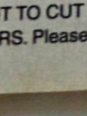

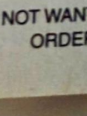

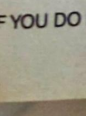

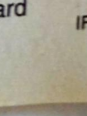

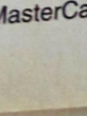

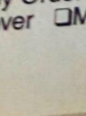

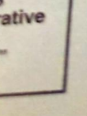

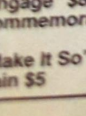

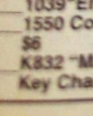

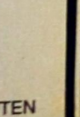

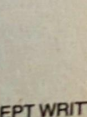

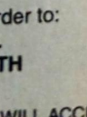

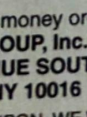

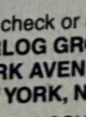

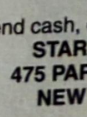

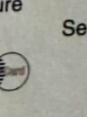

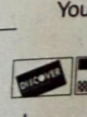

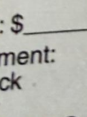

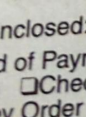

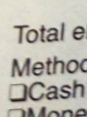

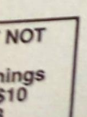

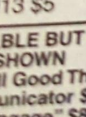

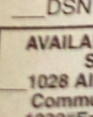

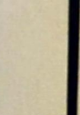

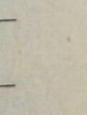

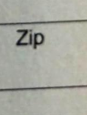

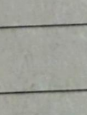

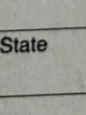

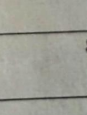

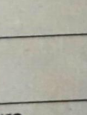

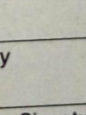

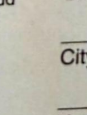

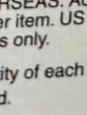

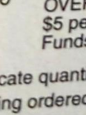

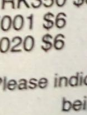

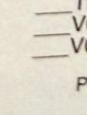

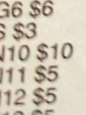

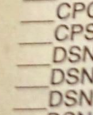

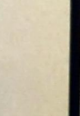

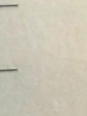

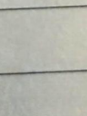

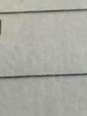

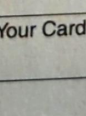

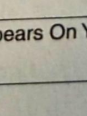

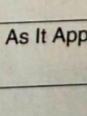

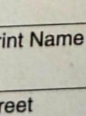

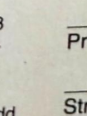

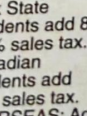

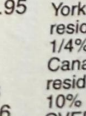

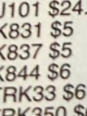

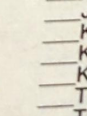

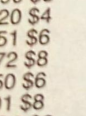

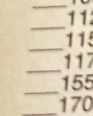

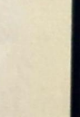

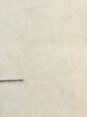

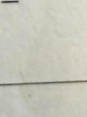

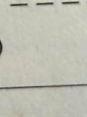

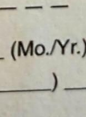

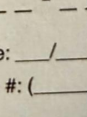

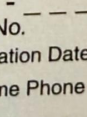

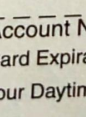

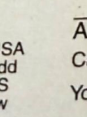

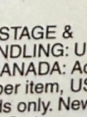

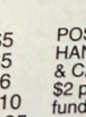

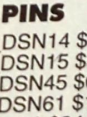

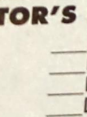

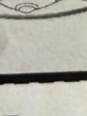

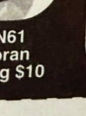

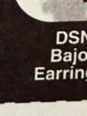

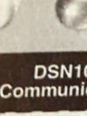

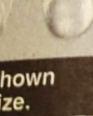

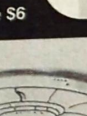

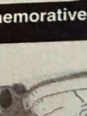

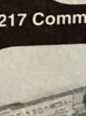

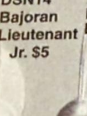

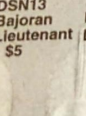

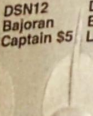

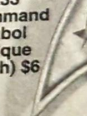

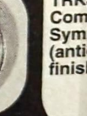

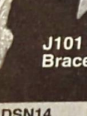

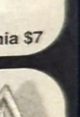

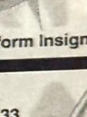

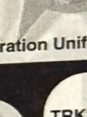

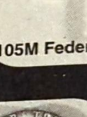

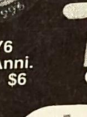

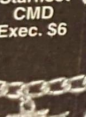

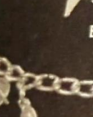

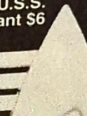

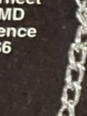

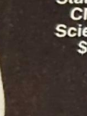

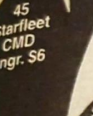

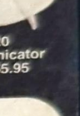

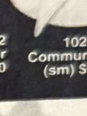

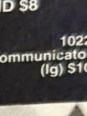

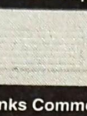

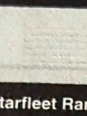

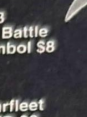

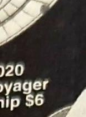

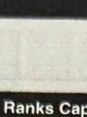

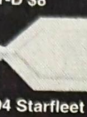

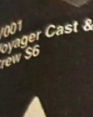

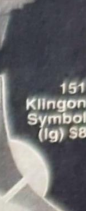

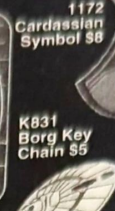

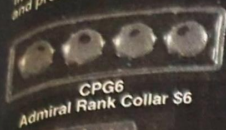

Butcher: I often think of that. We took advantage of the experience we had and we also had good connections—all over the world—and respectable reputations with the wrestlers. Everyone came in for us when we asked. Bruno Sammartino, Killer Kowalski, Eduardo Carpentier, Verne Gagne, BlackJack Mulligan, the list goes on.

WAS: Grand Prix promoted cards in Jerry Park, the old home of the Montreal Expos."

Butcher: Yes. We out-drew baseball in Jerry Park in those days. One card we promoted was to have a match between Kowalski and Jos LeDuc, we talked about it on TV for three months. Two weeks before the card, LeDuc pulled out of the match. Mad Dog, who was just coming back from Japan asked me, "What are we going to do?" I told him, you wrestle the killer. The match drew 29,107 people. In those days baseball drew 15,000-20,000 to the games. Their match made the headlines of all the newspapers throughout Quebec the next day. We're talking about the early '70s. Some of our other top guys in Grand Prix were Don Leo Jonathon, Gilles "the Fish" Poisson and the Hollywood Blondes: Jerry Brown and Dale Roberts with their rookie manager Sir Oliver Humperdink. Some of these guys were stars 20 years earlier and the fans still couldn't get enough of them.

WAS: Andre the Giant left France and came to your promotion, you saw him when he was very young, what are your early memories of him?

Butcher: First of all, he was 24 years old when he came to Grand Prix, and he grew. He was 7'4", and he got bigger. He was quick and very intelligent in the ring, many people may not have realized this. This guy came to Montreal and could only speak French, he learned to speak English in two months! Andre was the most impressive man I've ever known. He became my daughter Luna's unofficial Godfather.

Mad Dog and Butcher were the first-ever crowned Grand Prix Tag Champions in 1971.

WAS: What was the first thought that came to your mind when you learned of his death?

Butcher: His phenomenal growth as a result of a hormone disorder. He knew that he was not going to live long. What a way to go, he went home to France and while sleeping he passed away.

WAS: You were married during a taping of the WWF's Tuesday Night

TITANS TV show. What a day to remember, Butcher.

Butcher: It didn't turn out to be a real wedding, but it was supposed to be. First we were going to do it in Madison Square Garden, in the ring. Then three days before the show, we changed our minds, we would not be getting married. I told the WWF, they said, "don't worry about it, we'll get an actress to fill in," and they did. We had so much fun and what a food fight broke out. The funniest guy there was Sky Low Low. Luna was among the bridal party, did you know that?

WAS: Who were some of the wrestlers you two worked with to help bring their careers to a height of stardom?

Butcher: Gilles Poisson, Roddy Piper, Dino Bravo—Dino Bravo was the fastest learner I had ever seen. He learned to wrestle in three months. And of course, Andre. There are many we have forgotten. Coming from a large family, we learned never to be jealous of others. We wanted to help people, and that we're proud of.

WAS: What are your thoughts about Luna being on the road?

Butcher: You know, when she first started coming to the matches with me she was 10 or 12 years old. All she talked about was becoming a wrestler. I tried to discourage her, but that's all she ever wanted to do. When I was about to retire in 1985, I contacted the WWF for her. Over the years they (WWF) lost her address. So when they wanted her, the promotion hired a private detective to find her—they did, in Florida.

WAS: On a final note, other sports have had strikes and lock-outs. Do you see the day when pro wrestling is unionized?

Mad Dog: I don't think so. We wrestle as individuals, not as members of a team per sé.

Butcher: There's a great need for it. Promoters and wrestlers should equally share the wealth generated by each's hard work.

JAPANESE GIRLS IN EXPLODING BARBED-WIRE NIGHTMARE!!

Megumi Kudo vs
Shark Tsuchiya

Longtime Frontier Martial Arts superstar Megumi Kudo enters the Yokohama Arena for her grand retirement match—at the ripe old age of 27. The super-model/ wrestler's final match was to be against her arch nemesis, Shark Tsuchiya, in a ring rigged with exploding barbed wire!

Shark dominated her beautiful opponent during the early stages of the match.

The villainous Tsuchiya pulled out a knife and began to carve up the gorgeous Kudo's face.

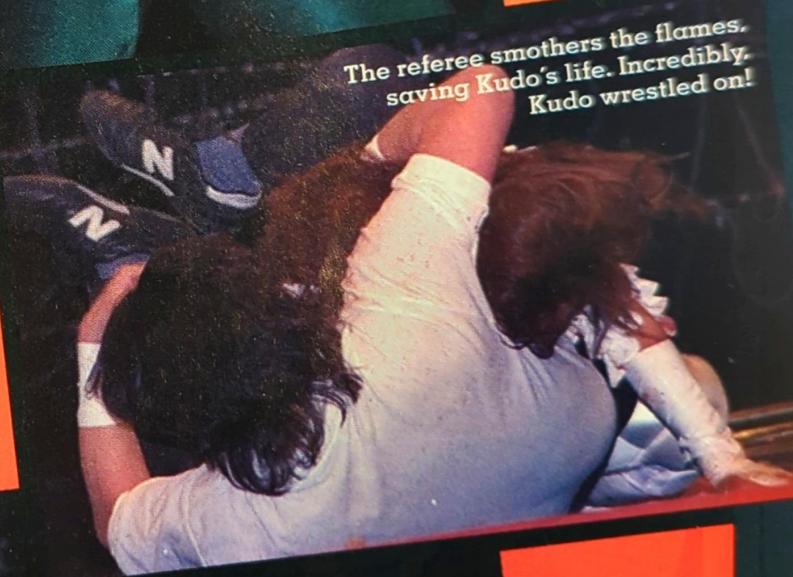

Kudo hits the exploding barbed wire, ripping and burning her flesh.

The ring was surrounded with a bed of barbs, so getting thrown from the ring meant an adventure in agony!

A fire bomb sets Kudo's hair on fire.

The referee smothers the flames, saving Kudo's life. Incredibly, Kudo wrestled on!

Despite second degree burns over much of her upper body, and blood gushing from uncountable barb wounds, Kudo pinned the Shark for the victory.

With thick layers of skin peeling off her body, Kudo writhes in agony after the match.

Photographers encircle the winner who is crying from her intense pain.

HONORING 30 YEARS IN THE WRESTLING BIZ!

AFA THE WILD SAMOAN

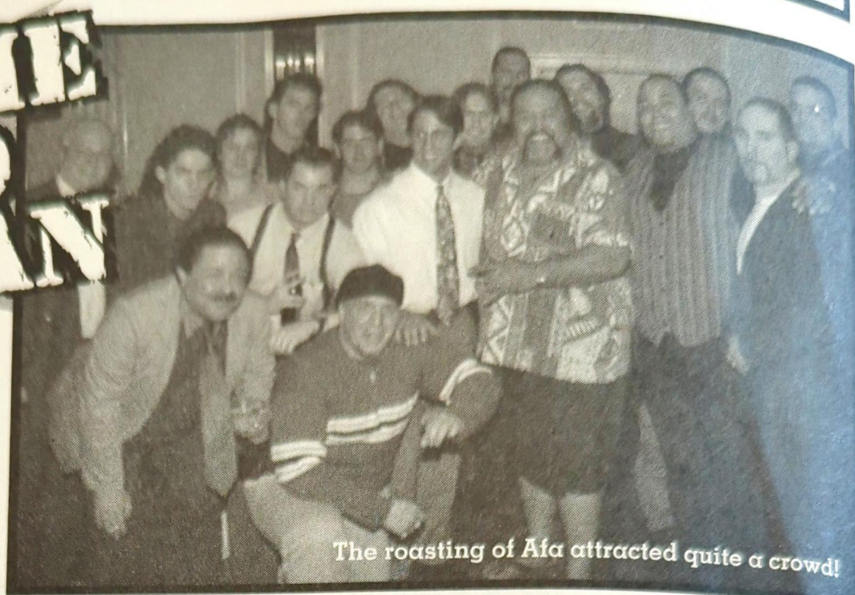

You're invited to the roast!

By GEORGE NAPOLITANO

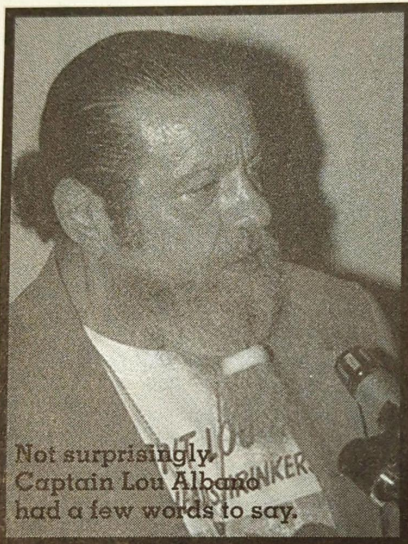

Afa, the Wild Samoan, has been involved in professional wrestling for nearly 30 years. For much of that time, Afa teamed with his brother Sika, and they were known as the Wild Samoans. As the Wild Samoans, Afa and Sika, captured the WWF tag team title three times with Captain Lou Albano as their manager. In 1983, Afa's son Samu joined the team and the group became even more feared than ever before.

The following year, Afa introduced nephews the Tonga Kid (who later wrestled as Tama) and Fatu to the wrestling scene, and they promptly added to the Samoan legacy. In 1993, Afa's nephew, Yokozuna, joined the WWF and—as everyone knows—Yokozuna quickly captured the WWF Heavyweight title. Last year, nephew Matt Anoa'i entered the sport and teamed with his cousin Samu. The duo became known as the Samoan Gangsters in ECW. Not too long ago, another nephew, Lloyd, was added to the Samoan Gangsters. Matt and Lloyd have been very busy of late carrying on the proud Samoan tradition.

After retiring from active com-

The roasting of Afa attracted quite a crowd!

Not surprisingly, Captain Lou Albano had a few words to say.

petition in 1992, Afa began to devote more of his time to training aspiring wrestlers. Having trained Samu, Fatu, the Tonga Kid, Yokozuna and countless others, Afa decided to open a school: "The Wild Samoan Training Center" in Allentown, PA, and he's been at it ever since. Right now, Afa has 20 students enrolled in his most recent session, and his graduates are scattered throughout the wrestling world.

With all of the people that Afa has helped over the years, the idea came up to hold a roast for the man who they affectionately call "Pops." Long-time New Jersey promoter Dennis Galamb chose the Holiday Inn in Carteret, New Jersey, and after the word went out that there was going to be a "roast" for Afa, all available tickets were quickly sold out.

Attending the affair were many of Afa's students, as well as countless others who he has helped over the years. Among the many personalities who spoke in Afa's behalf were Captain Lou Albano, Bam Bam Bigelow, Ray "Doink" Apollo and Rocko Rock of Public Enemy.

Each had plenty to say about "Pops." As can be expected, the one and only Captain Lou Albano had everyone in stitches with his remarks and comments about his old friend Afa.

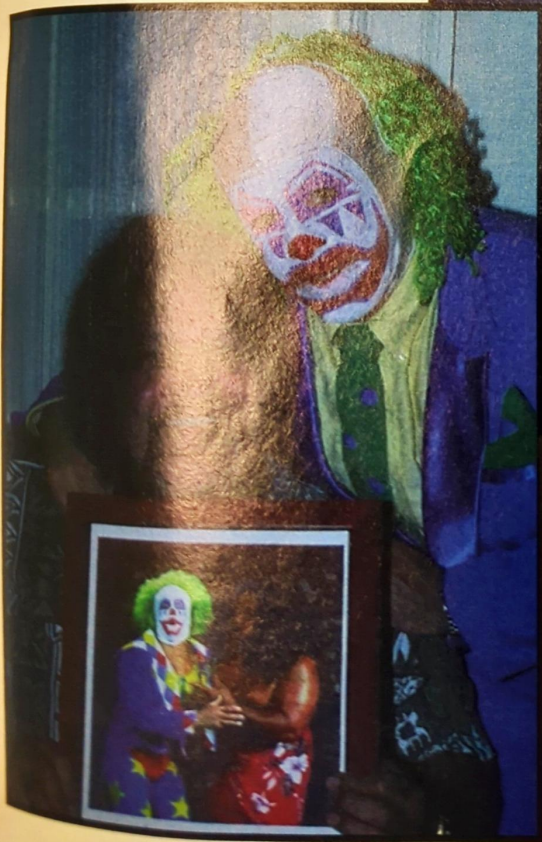

Over the years, Afa the Wild Samoan has been instrumental in guiding the careers of numerous wrestlers, and everyone who has come in contact with him has nothing but the highest praise for the man who they affectionately refer to as "Pops."

Flyboy Rocco Rock of the Public Enemy spoke to the gathering.

Bam Bam Bigelow talks about the influence that Afa has had on his career.
